Get to Know the Faces of Cancer Care

Meet Megan Solivan of St. Luke's Cancer Care Associates

If you visit St. Luke's Cancer Center at the new St. Luke's Anderson Campus in Bethlehem Township, chances are you have met Megan Solivan, an administrative assistant for medical director of oncology services Dr. Lee Riley and oncology service line administrative director Joe Pinto. Her smile is contagious; she exudes professionalism; and she sets the tone for outstanding customer service.

"I love my job," she says. "My favorite part is meeting all the wonderful people, from the friendly Cancer Center employees to our patients. This is truly a great place to work."

Megan Solivan hails from central Illinois and actually grew up on a farm in the Midwest. She attended Illinois State University where she graduated with a bachelor's degree in public relations and a minor in business administration.

Megan currently lives in Freemansburg with her husband JR. She is an animal lover and has two cats, Jetson and Jinx.

Megan also loves being outdoors. She loves to hike and bike. She also loves to read, bake and travel.
