St. Luke's Cancer Care Associates – Surgical Oncology

Drs. Riley and Kelly focus their practice on treating breast cancers

Specialization makes a difference. Studies have shown that finding the best-trained, educated and experienced surgeon to perform cancer surgery can significantly improve care and survival. St. Luke's fellowship-trained breast and surgical oncologists have completed specialized fellowships and participate in societies dedicated to cancer and breast surgery.

Lee B. Riley, MD, PhD, FACS
Dr. Riley serves as the Section Chief of Surgical Oncology for St. Luke's Hospital & Health Network. He also serves as Medical Director for the Oncology Services and Director of Surgical Research. Dr. Riley received his medical degree and completed his surgical residency at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston, Texas. He received his PhD in Immunology from the University of Texas Graduate School of Biomedical Science in San Antonio, Texas. He completed fellowships in surgical oncology at MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston and at Fox Chase Cancer Center in Philadelphia after completing his general surgery training.

Dr. Riley is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a member of many societies including The American Association of Immunologists, the Association of Community Cancer Centers, the Association of Cancer Executives, the American Cancer Society, Lehigh Valley Chapter, Board of Directors, the Pennsylvania Medical Society and the Society of Surgical Oncology.

Dr. Riley was the first recipient, Richard J. Torpie, MD, endowed chair in oncology and a recipient of the 2006 Community Clinical Scientist Award, Association of Community Cancer Centers. He is currently conducting vaccine research for solid malignant tumors.

Tricia Kelly, MD, FACS
Dr. Kelly completed her fellowship in breast surgical oncology at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation in Cleveland, Ohio and completed a fellowship at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, Center for Fetal Diagnosis and Treatment Research. She received her medical degree from Temple University School of Medicine in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and completed her residency in general surgery at Cooper Hospital/UMC, Robert Wood Johnson School of Medicine.

A fellow of the Society of Surgical Oncology and the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Kelly is also a member of the Philadelphia Academy of Surgery and the American Society of Breast Surgeons (ASBS), serving the ASBS as the Chair of the Education Committee.

Dr. Kelly previously served on the ASBS Executive Committee, Board of Directors, as Secretary/Treasurer and as a committee member on the Patient Safety and Quality and Patient Advocacy Committees.
